CELEBRATING LIFE IN THE NEW LOVE PARK
Dancing, Dining, and Weddings Grace the Center City Plaza

August 14, 2018 – Philadelphia, PA – Starting this month, Fairmount Park Conservancy and Philadelphia Parks & Recreation are bringing back programming and a rotating array of food trucks to enliven LOVE Park, which was re-opened on May 30 after a major redesign. Plans include: line dancing and salsa dancing on Fridays at noon, a mix of food vendors on weekdays, Mindfulness Mondays featuring meditation, and special live performances. In addition, the Conservancy and Parks & Recreation have worked with the Mayor’s Office to offer weddings in LOVE Park on two Wednesdays every month.

“LOVE Park is one of the most dynamic community spaces in Philadelphia and we’re excited to bring even more people together here through the power of arts and culture,” said Jamie Gauthier, Executive Director of Fairmount Park Conservancy, the nonprofit partner behind such park projects as The Oval+ and Parks on Tap. “There’s going to be something for everyone to enjoy at the park, from great food to interactive performances to salsa dancing.”

Philadelphia Parks and Recreation Commissioner Kathryn Ott Lovell noted, “While the renovation of LOVE Park plaza was underway, people kept asking: ‘Where is the love?’ And we told them: ‘Wait until the park opens!’ Now we have people in love getting married in LOVE – it keeps getting better.”
